BY THE HELP OF FREE-SILVERSENATORS.

Passage of the Tariff Bill Assured at the Special Session.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A Washington despatch to the Times says: It is understood that Representative Newlands of Nevada has successfully negotiated a treaty with a sufficient number of free-silver Senators from the West to insure the passage of a tariff bill at the special session. The perfect symmetry of the new tariff bill may be somewhat disturbed by the necessity for robust recognition of interests represented by the free-silver allies of the "straight-out" Republicans. The very utmost that can be hoped for by the next administration, even allowing for the seating of Du Pont of Delaware, which is an improbability, is forty-five in the Senate, or just half the total membership. There are only two directions from which help can be obtained, from the sound-money Democrats or the free-silver Republicans. Senator-elect McEnery of Louisiana has said that he would vote for and support a tariff bill that would give recognition to sugar, but that is indefinite, and outside of him there is no assurance that any of the sound-money Democrats would help him out. The practical solution, therefore, was found to lie in the direction of the free-silver Republicans, who have a natural predilection for protection.

Severe Weather at Sea.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 22.—Steamer Frieda, from Baltimore for this port, and steamer Maroa, from Brunswick for Liverpool, have arrived here. Both report having experienced terrific weather. The Frieda's deck are damaged, and the Maroa is short of coal. During the storm which she encountered the Maroa was obliged to jettison five hundred bales of cotton.

Suicide of a College Professor.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 22.—Professor John C. Daw, thirty-five years old, committed suicide by taking laudanum last night. Until about eight months ago he was a professor in the rhetoric department of the University of Wisconsin. He was graduated from Edinburgh University with the highest honors.

Failed to Secure Damages for Football Injuries.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 22.—The jury in the Costello-Winston case yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant. The action was brought by M. Costello of Duluth against P. B. Winston, the Minneapolis capitalist, to recover $50,000 damages. In a high school football game at Duluth Mr. Costello's son was thrown out of a flying wedge and permanently crippled. He claimed that Mr. Winston's son threw him out, but could not convince the jury that such was the case.

ALGER WILLING.

Would Esteem a Cabinet Place the Crowning Honor of His Life

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 22.—The Alger Republican club held its eighth annual banquet last night. The organization is named in honor of General R. A. Alger, and during the festivities resolutions were passed endorsing the general for a cabinet position. A copy of the resolutions will be forwarded to the President-elect, as the voice of the club and the Republican party in Michigan. General Alger, in acknowledgment, said: "If I am chosen to represent this state in the cabinet of President McKinley I shall esteem it the crowning honor of my life, and something to hand down in the history of my family; an honor that will be cherished as long as life shall last."

Loss of a Norwegian Bark.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—Barkentine City of Papeete, from Tahiti, brings news of the loss of Norwegian bark Jabez, bound from Sydney for Rotterdam. The vessel encountered a typhoon and sprang a leak, whereupon the captain decided to make for Tahiti. While entering the harbor the bark struck on the bar and went to pieces. All hands were saved.

Cruiser Montgomery Sails for Hampton Roads.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—United States cruiser Montgomery, which received injury to her bottom and had a propellor broken by touching some submerged obstruction in the channel near Governor's Island last week, being obliged to return to the navy yard for repairs, passed out at Sandy Hook this morning, bound for Hampton Roads, to join the squadron there.

TO BE BISHOPS.

Selections by the Pope for Vacant American Seas.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—A special cablegram from Rome says the pope has selected the Very Rev. Felix Hintemeyer, of the Benedictine order, vicar general of the vicariate apostolic of North Carolina, to be bishop of Wilmington, Del., as successor of Bishop Alfred A. Curtis, who last year forwarded his resignation to Rome. It is also stated that the Very Rev. P. Allen, D.D., president of St. Mary's seminary and college at Emmettsburg, Md., has been selected by the pope to be Bishop of Mobile, as successor of Bishop Jeremiah Sullivan, who died August 10 last.

Rev. Dr. Allen's selection to the bishopric of Mobile was not unexpected, as he was the most prominent of three priests who were selected by the clergy of the Mobile diocese and endorsed by the bishops of the province of New Orleans, of which the diocese of Mobile forms a part. Rev. Francis V. Nugent of New Orleans and Rev. J. J. Harty of St. Louis were the others. Father Allen is about forty-five years old, and a native of Boston. He was educated at St. Mary's and was ordained about twenty years ago in the diocese of Boston. For several years he served missions in various parts of Massachusetts. When Very Rev. William Byrne resigned from the presidency of Mt. St. Mary's, about ten years ago, to become vicar general of Boston, Father Allen succeeded him. His administration at Mt. St. Mary's has been remarkably successful. Several years ago Georgetown University gave him the degree of doctor of divinity.

The number of absolutely unlettered persons is 6,101,470, including 2,696,615 females."

COLLISION AT SEA.

One Steamer Cut to the Water's Edge, the Other Probably Sunk.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Coasting steamer Salisbury, bound from Port Haven for Newport, has arrived at Ilfracombe. She was cut down to the water's edge in a collision with a large three-masted steamer, whose name was not ascertained. It is believed that the unknown vessel foundered.

Found Drowned in the Hold of a Capsized Schooner.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 22.—Yesterday the water was pumped out of schooner Jennie Greenbank, which was capsized off York Nubble last Monday afternoon. This morning an examination of the vessel's hold was made, and the body of Angus Hart, the cook, who was drowned, was found in it. Hart was twenty-four years of age, single, and belonged in Thomaston, Me., where his remains will be taken.

The storm yesterday did considerable damage in the lower harbor, principally at the long pier, owned by the Piscataqua Yacht Club, which was washed away. Seafaring men say the day was the worst experienced for twenty-five years.

ON THE INCREASE.

Floods in Spanish River Districts Doing Much Damage.

MADRID, Jan. 22.—The floods which have prevailed for several days in the districts through which the Guadalquiver and Manzanares rivers flow are on the increase. Both rivers, as well as a number of smaller streams, have overflowed their banks, and immense tracts of country are submerged. Railway travel is entirely suspended, and the port of Sevelle is closed to vessels, owing to high water. The damage to property is enormous.

Awarded £2,900 Salvage.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A verdict was rendered in the admiralty court today, awarding the sum of £2,900 to the owners of British steamer Holbein, for towing British steamer Cotchele into Halifax in November last. The Cotchele, while on a voyage from New York for Hull with a general cargo, broke her mil shaft and lost her propeller, and drifted for five days before being picked up by the Holbein.

During the gale Thursday morning a portion of the belfry of the Methodist Episcopal Church was blown off.

The occasions are very rare when the tide reaches so high a mark as yesterday.

The Fall River steamboat started on her morning trip to Providence Thursday, but before reaching Bristol Ferry the fury of the gale was such that she put back to Fall River. About noon, when the storm had lulled, she made a second start and completed her regular trip.

The attendance at the schools was very small yesterday, the storm being at its height at the time at which the teachers and children would leave home. One school numbering thirty-five pupils had only five present, and they were well drenched in going. Some of the schools closed early, for although the rain ceased about noon, the roads, both for driving and walking, were very muddy. In these times, when pneumonia is prevalent, it seems rather rash for parents to allow children to be so exposed without a possibility of changing wet clothes for dry.

With the belief that she could be better cared for there than elsewhere, under existing circumstances, Hittie Addie Barker was taken Tuesday to the Oaklawn school for girls at Cranston, by Town Sergeant William T. Harvey.

Mr. Henry C. Anthony is to put up a cottage on Turnpike road, which will probably be occupied by Mr. Alphonso Davol.

EDMUNDS FOR OLNEY.

Heartily Endorses the Arbitration Treaty.

Monroe Doctrine Not in the Least Compromised by It.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Ex-Senator Edmunds of Vermont has written a letter to several gentlemen of this city who sought his opinion on the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain. Mr. Edmunds is one of the leading authorities on international law in the United States. In his letter he says:

The three principal criticisms of the treaty are, first, that it commits this government to submitting to arbitration questions that may arise in connection with the Monroe doctrine. With sincere respect for the gentlemen who, it is said, have suggested this objection, I think that it is quite unfounded, and that those who have advanced it must have failed to observe the careful language used in the treaty.

The words upon which the criticism is based are found in art. IV., as follows: "All other matters in difference, in respect of which either of the high contracting parties shall have rights against the other under the treaty or otherwise."

What, then, are "rights against the other?" In the theory of the municipal state and of all its autonomy, the rights of one citizen against another are essentially and exclusively those things that the law of the state enjoins upon each in regard to the other. This is the whole definition. Precisely the same is true in international law. This, I believe, all writers on national law and international law agree in.

To illustrate these propositions, I take law. This, I believe, all writers on na- against Great Britain in regard to her operations in Abyssinia, nor would she have any rights against us if we were to attempt to share in the partition of Africa. In the case of Turkey, if we were to seize the whole of Asia Minor and establish peace and order there (as the British have done, in substance, in Egypt), we should have invaded no right of any power except Turkey. The same is, of course, true in respect of our relations and conduct with the states of the western hemisphere, under the Monroe doctrine, or under any other policy that we may think it just to adopt.

It was, then, the clear and perfectly understood distinction between the rights of one nation against another, and their interests and policies in regard to other nations, that doubtless led to a separate treaty in regard to the Venezuelan question; for both governments knew that the affair could not possibly come within the scope of the general treaty. You will see, therefore, that the phrase of the treaty which is criticised is the most apt possible to mark the boundary of arbitration, and that it leaves the Monroe doctrine unaffected.

The second objection is the fear that the treaty may affect our attitude in regard to the Nicaragua canal, in which the interests of the United States are so deeply concerned. What I have already said dispenses of that solicitude; I have not time to go into detail about it.

The third and last objection I have heard is the supposed danger of leaving it to any European power to name an umpire in certain contingencies. It is enough to say that, so far as our considerable experience has gone in such matters, we have never had occasion to complain of the action of any sovereign in naming an umpire or in deciding a dispute.

In the great arbitration treaty of 1871 we agreed that three members of the Geneva tribunal should be named by three sovereigns, two of them Europeans, and that if any or all of these sovereigns should fail to name these members, the King of Sweden should name them all. And, in the same treaty, we did not hesitate to submit the very important question of our boundary on the Pacific coast to the Emperor of Germany.

I am an intense supporter of the Monroe doctrine. I believe the building of the Nicaragua canal under the auspices of the United States to be of urgent necessity. I believe most earnestly in international arbitration to the utmost extent that civilized, just and self-respecting nations can go; and I most earnestly hope that the Senate will ratify the treaty as it is proposed, as the first step—very great and auspicious—toward the attainment of peace among nations.

CABINET-MAKING.

Chicago Business Men Object to Cullom's Appointment.

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 21.—Cabinet-making steadily progresses. Although it is not possible to make any definite announcement today, it is safe to say that the cabinet will be practically formed by the end of next week. The final decision as to New England may be influenced by the visit of a party of Boston Republicans, of whose arrival tomorrow Major McKinley has been notified by a telegram signed by Senators Hoar and Lodge. The Boston gentlemen, it is learned, are coming here to urge the President-elect to appoint T. Jefferson Coolidge of Massachusetts to the cabinet. It may be almost positively stated that the only Massachusetts man who is likely to be invited into Major McKinley's cabinet is ex-Governor John D. Long, and his selection seems practically determined upon.

Senator Burrows of Michigan spent most of today at the McKinley home, where he was entertained at luncheon. He earnestly advocates the appointment of General Alger as Secretary of War, and this second visit, so closely following his journey here in company with Mr. Sherman last week, is regarded as indicating that General Alger is to realize his ambition. Senator Burrows said this morning, however, that he could not yet make any statement with certainty as to General Alger, much as he would like to do so.

A committee of the ex-Confederate organization which took part in the campaign called upon Major McKinley today. They urged in a general way that one member of the cabinet be taken from the extreme South. To them Major McKinley said, as he said to a Texas delegation the other day which presented him a petition of 103,000 signatures for the appointment of National Committeeman Grant to the cabinet, that he would give the treatment of the South careful consideration. But he did not commit himself in any way.

It has been steadily assumed that one cabinet officer would be selected from a border state, and this selection gossip has given to Judge Nathan Goff of West Virginia, but Judge Goff has a life position on the federal bench. A later impression is that Kentucky may be recognized. Chairman Roberts of the Republican state committee of Kentucky has just left Canton, after a very satisfactory interview with Major McKinley.

Four representative ex-Confederate soldiers from the valley of Virginia called today to invite Major McKinley to attend a great peace meeting in the Shenandoah valley early next autumn. It is proposed to have several thousand Union and Confederate veterans meet on Southern soil upon that occasion. Major McKinley will probably deliver an address.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Strong opposition has developed on the part of bankers and other business men in Chicago to the selection of Senator Cullom as Secretary of the Treasury, and pressure is being brought to bear on Major McKinley to prevent his appointment. The men who are trying to keep Mr. Cullom out of the cabinet learn that while Major McKinley has not definitely decided upon his appointment, the Senatorial leaders are doing their best to persuade him to accept him. Senator Allison of Iowa recommended Mr. Cullom to Mr. McKinley, and Senators Sherman, Quay and others for whom Major McKinley has a high regard, have urged his appointment. Cullom has been anxious to secure a place in the cabinet, has been endeavoring to get in it ever since the fizzle of his Presidential boom, which occurred when the Illinois state Republican convention declared against him and in favor of McKinley for the Presidential nomination.

Local business men who oppose Senator Cullom's selection say that he has no real knowledge of the Treasury finances, knows very little about banking and currency, and has always avoided the acquaintance of Chicago bankers. Whatever reputation he may have in the Senate, the business men of Chicago regard him as a nonentity, and those best acquainted with him say that he has not even sufficient financial ability to manage his own business.

Those who oppose Cullom's nomination to the cabinet include in their numbers practically all Major McKinley's friends in Illinois, and they are bringing every influence to bear to prevent his being given the Treasury portfolio. Letters and telegrams protesting against it have been sent to Canton by business men as well as politicians, and the number of protests, it is thought, can hardly fail to attain their object.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—In spite of his repeated denials that any place in the McKinley cabinet has been offered to him, there is good Senatorial authority for the report that Mr. Cullom of Illinois has been twice offered the Secretaryship of the Treasury, and that the second offer still stands open. What keeps Mr. Cullom in a ferment of doubt is the question whether, if he stays where he is, he can be re-elected in 1901. If he can, he will not go into the cabinet, and he is keeping the mail busy, with the correspondence between himself and his political friends in Illinois as to his future chances. How long the President-elect will consent to hold the offer open is doubtful now that the Senator's motive in hesitating is understood.

A CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.

Congressman Tucker of Virginia Declared Entitled to His Seat.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—After 120 members of the House of Representatives, including 53 Republicans, had voted, in accordance with the recommendation of the majority of the committee on elections No. 3, that Mr. Tucker, Democrat, was entitled to retain his seat as a member of the Fifty-fourth Congress from the Tenth Virginia district, which was contested by Mr. Yost, Republican, two hours were spent in making the vote effective and finally settling the matter. The case had been discussed from noon until 4:30 o'clock, the committee's recommendation being supported by Messrs. Dearmond, Democrat, of Missouri; Walker, Republican, Massachusetts; Tucker, the contestee, and McCall, Republican, of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee reporting the case. The recommendation of the minority that Mr. Yost (who is the Representative-elect from the district in the Fifty-fifth Congress) be given the seat was advocated by Messrs. Grow, Republican, of Pennsylvania; Taylor, Republican, Ohio; Lacey, Republican, Iowa; Brumm, Republican, Pennsylvania; Thorp, Republican, Virginia, and Walker, Republican, Virginia, the latter of whom, with Mr. Thomas, Republican, Michigan, constituted the minority of the elections committee.

The vote in favor of Yost was 120 (Mr. Thomas having changed his vote in order to move a reconsideration), and this closeness induced the friends of the minority led by Mr. Hepburn, Republican, of Iowa, and by Mr. Thomas, to make a parliamentary fight lasting two hours to force an adjournment, in the hope that a different result might be reached tomorrow. Their efforts were futile, and the resolution declaring Tucker entitled to the seat was adopted at 5:30 o'clock by a vote of 119 to 47, fourteen members being present and not voting. The result was clinched by the adoption of the usual formal motion, to reconsider the vote and to lay that motion on the table, and the House then adjourned.

THE CUBANS' ONE IDEA.

Nothing Short of Independence Will be Accepted by Them.

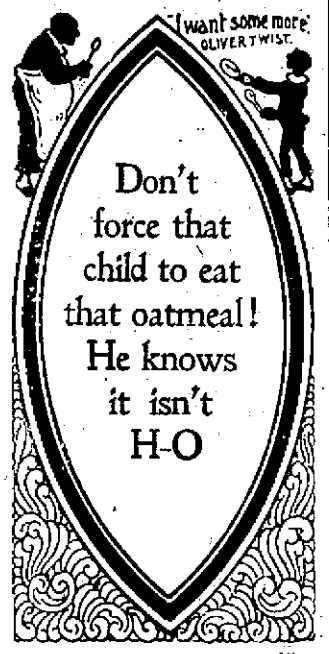

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—General Palma of the Cuban junta in this city issued a statement today, in which he said: "Reforms were passed by the Spanish Cortes, but the outbreak of this revolution was not thereby stayed one hour. There was and is but one idea for which the Cubans are fighting. We have enough of the so-called reforms, enough of promises of more reforms, enough of promised autonomy. Every intelligent man would rightly condemn the leaders and participants in this movement if anything short of independence should be the basis of a treaty of peace with Spain.

"Knowing General Gomez as a comrade in the last revolution, knowing his opinions as expressed to me before and during this war, knowing his stainless patriotism, I can vouch for him. He is made of too stern a material to surrender on any such terms, particularly when, in his latest letters to me, he writes contentedly of his resources and glowingly of his conviction that his winter's campaign will be most successful. But even though any one of our foremost leaders should be inclined to terminate the war by the acceptance of autonomy (which is barely within the bounds of possibility), while he himself might surrender he would not do so alone. We Cubans are not worshippers of individualities; we are steadfast followers of our ideal.

"No treaty of peace can be made by the Cubans unless ratified by a special assembly. It is beyond the bounds of possibility to expect that the Cubans, after two years of sanguinary strife, when they find themselves in a position such as has never been their good fortune to occupy in point of numbers, equipment and resources, will now weakly accept terms of compromise. Every Cuban, every American, knows that the apparent generous and conciliatory spirit of Spain springs not from her weakness. How can we then, under the circumstances, be expected to waver?

"News of our successes in the field may be suppressed by the censor, pacification of the island provinces may be falsely proclaimed as in the case of Pinar del Rio, decrees allowing grinding of sugar may be issued when all cane has been destroyed; promises of reforms and autonomy given and amnesties promulgated; foreign countries may by these means and by mendacious Spanish diplomacy be cajoled into the belief that Spain is mighty, is generous, and that we are weak and ungrateful, but we Cubans will continue to fight for independence, and nothing but independence, first, last and all the time. The only excuse we will have for having begun the war will be its triumph; the only fitting monument for our fallen comrades, the independence of their country."

A new and revised edition of the late Sidney Lanier's work, "The English Novel," is to be issued shortly by the Scribners. It will be printed from new plates, and has been prepared under the supervision of Mrs. Lanier. Advantage has been taken of the opportunity to make some corrections, and to embody some passages not included in the original edition.

THE INSTALLATION OF EARLY TIMES.

In the good old days of the past, when the pastorate of a minister in rural districts continued for thirty or even forty years, and when at last, through bodily infirmity or other good reasons, he was forced to retire, the selection of a new clergyman was a very serious and momentous affair. There were but few theological seminaries in the entire land, and therefore the opportunities to acquire what is now designated as a liberal education were exceedingly rare. Frequently the meeting-house for one or two years was closed, although sometimes occasional services would be conducted by the deacon or elder of the church. When at last a devout young man with evident aptitude for the position, and having passed a year at least in some distant secluded parish, was proposed to the committee, he was promptly invited to take charge of the vacant pulpit.

Some weeks previous to the public installation of the new pastor the village began to assume an unusually busy aspect. Garden gates and barn doors that for many months had been broken or misplaced from their hinges were through the instrumentality of the country blacksmith placed in their original positions; new paint and paper were seen everywhere, and the little village store increased its stock of provisions, staple dry goods, chewing gum and confectionery. The meeting-house was often newly shingled, while the galleries, pews and the very high pulpit received such a thorough scrubbing that, as one dear sister remarked, it looked "as good as new."

The day previous to the installation was a very busy and likewise equally solemn occasion; the elders, deacons, and examining committee occupied a few front pews, and very profound and heart-searching questions were propounded to the minister-elect. Interrogories as to his belief in the doctrines of Calvinism, Hopkinsonianism, election, predestination and perseverance of the saints were asked, and if these were answered satisfactorily, immediate preparations were commenced for the service of the following day. Meadow daisies, clover blossoms, sprigs of asparagus, peonies, poppies, wild roses and other flowers were arranged in every part of the meeting-house, giving to the entire building a very fragrant atmosphere.

On the day of this imposing service the district school, the village grocery and blacksmith shop were closed. The small choir having for the previous few weeks had several extra rehearsals, the installation music was really very fine, and "Denmark," "Strike the Cymbal," old "Northfield" and "Ganges," being accompanied by bass viol and first and second violin, furnished music that was really artistic for those primitive days.

The "collection," as it was called, was always an important part of the service. At the close of the second long prayer, two of the officers of the society would pass down and up the newly swept aisles with all the dignity if not the grace of a modern drum major. The miscellaneous assortment of coin, silver fourpences, ninepences and huge copper pennies, would have gladdened the eye of a professional numismatist.

The sexton appeared in a brand-new suit of clothes, and rang the old meeting-house bell as if he meant business and fully realized his responsible position.

The sermon was usually fully an hour and a quarter in length, its introduction and peroration dividing it into two equal parts, while the ceremony of extending the right hand of fellowship was brief.

When the charge to the congregation was delivered the interest became intense, and certain suggestive nods and a few ungraceful nudges of the elbow or shrugs of the shoulder were quite observable.

At the close of the service the roads and by ways presented a picturesque appearance; all sorts of vehicles were in use, not a few rode on pillions while hundreds proceeded to their homes on foot.

The dinner given in honor of the new pastor was always attended by the officers of the church and most of the big dignitaries of the little town.

Although the church exercises were the plainest and most unpretentious, we doubt not that its influence for good was noticed for a long time throughout the entire community, and possibly in the great hereafter more than one soul might confess that he was quickened into higher and holier aspirations from attending the quaint and simple installation service which occurred more than four-score years ago. N.

TIVERTON.

Patrick and Ann Murphy of Tiverton have sold to John T. Sherburne and wife of Providence one undivided half of a tract of land, with dwelling houses and farm buildings, situated in North Tiverton.

John C. Johnes of Newport has sold to Stephen Y. R. Thayer of Boston and Agnes Church of Tiverton, trustees of the Church of the Holy Name, 47,452 square feet of land, upon which the church now stands.

Sarah L. Gardner of Fall River has sold to Manuel F. Morris 80 square rods of land, being lots No. 27 and 28 in section D, Indian Grove place.

Mary T. Davis of Fall River has sold to Ann Bradley of Fall River forty square rods of land, with buildings and improvements, being the northerly half of lots 14 and 15 in section E, Indian Grove plan.

Frederick and John A. Wilcox of Tiverton and Edward Wilcox of Providence, heirs-at-law of the late Holder N. Wilcox, have quitclaimed to Olivia W. Seabury of Newport the corner lot, containing one acre and 40 rods, being the lot designated as No. 1 B on plan of land belonging to the estate of Edward Wilcox; also the "Mill" lot and the "Lyd" lot, containing about twenty eight acres.

THE LUNCH WAGON QUESTION.

The frankfort wagons, as the night lunch wagons are called hereabouts, are causing some inquiring minds in New Bedford to ask if they are not a menace to the public health, because of the manner in which they must be run. The question of water supply, of the washing of dishes, and the storage of the food to be used, both by day and night, are the three main points presented for the consideration of the board of health. Unlike Newport, where all these lunch wagons occupy the public roads, only one night lunch cart in New Bedford is situated on the public streets. That one "squatted" in its present position in 1881, after the proprietor had vainly endeavored to obtain permission from the city officials to so locate, and has never been disturbed. All the other carts are situated on private property. It appears that the tax assessors have had their eyes on the wagons and have taxed them on about half their cost. In Fall River the city council has decided to charge lunch wagons that occupy the public streets $200 a year license.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. W. K. Thorn is spending the winter at Pau, France.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor will sail for Bermuda early in March.

—Mrs. John E. Lake and Mrs. John T. Delano have returned from a visit to Providence.

—The third in the series of Bible readings at the First Methodist Episcopal Church will be conducted by the pastor Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the subject being "The Healing of the Lame Man and its Results."

—The recent storm did very little damage in the vicinity of Newport compared with that in neighboring places. The high tides, assisted by the wind, caused some disturbance at Easton's beach, where some of the platforms and steps of the bathing pavilion were moved slightly, though but little damage was done.

—At the quarterly session of the Rhode Island Medico-Legal Society, in Providence yesterday afternoon, H. Goodwin MacKaye, M. D., of this city presiding, Dr. Charles W. Stewart, the recently appointed medical examiner for this district, was elected to active membership, and Francis B. Peckham, Esq., to associate membership.

—Major H. B. Lowry, staff quartermaster of the marine corps, who superintended the construction of the marine barracks at the Naval Station, has been reprimanded by the Secretary of the Navy because of the high price paid for laundry work for the marine corps. The contract was awarded to the lowest bidder, who was able to sub-let the work at the various places at a big profit, just as is done on star route mail lines. There was nothing to show that Major Lowry was guilty of anything more than carelessness.

—The newly elected officers of Ocean Lodge, No. 7, Ancient Order of United Workmen, were installed last evening by Past Master Workman George H. Popple. After the formalities remarks were made by the installing officer, Master Workman James H. Comstock, Foreman Allen C. Griffith, Past Master Workmen W. O. Goddard, George H. Wilbar and George S. Bowen, and others. A resolution was adopted, instructing the delegates to the grand lodge, which is to meet in Boston February 26, to vote against the proposed plan of classified assessments.

THE LOBSTER FISHING BUSINESS.

The reports on the condition of the lobster fishery of Massachusetts show that while the number of fishermen has increased during the past year, the catch per man was a decline of ten per cent as compared with 1895. Since 1890 the catch per fisherman has dropped fully fifty per cent. The officers say that, despite the efforts made to enforce the law in relation to the sale of small lobsters, the fishermen manage to dispose of them, thus preventing possible increase from breeding. While the state and the national government are spending much money for the purchase of seed lobsters and the propagation of the eggs, the fishermen are gradually killing the goose that laid their golden eggs, by selling lobsters of all sizes, everything that comes into their pots being disposed of unless the officers are near. The officials say that already lobsters have so increased in cost as to be beyond the reach of the ordinary eater, and it seems to be simply a question of time when they will become a very scarce article of food.

It may be necessary for the proper protection of the lobster fishery to absolutely prohibit the catching of lobsters in the waters of the New England states for a specified number of years. Such action has been taken before this in regard to the mackerel fishery, and it is thought with good results.

SUCCESS OF MR. HUGHES AT THE WASHINGTON SHOW.

Mr. William M. Hughes of Portsmouth has received the following letter from Secretary Howard of the national poultry and pigeon show, recently held in Washington: "Your bantams were the attraction of the show, and made a clean sweep, receiving twelve regular prizes, all they could possibly win, and were specially commended by the society, making thirteen prizes on ten birds. You are aware that a specially commended prize is rarely given, and only in cases of extreme merit."

Mr. Hughes is greatly pleased at his success, and is receiving congratulations daily from breeders of fancy poultry throughout the country. On the second day of the show in Washington he was offered $500 for the ten birds exhibited, but declined.

The prizes awarded to his fowls were first, second, third, fourth and fifth each on cockerel and pullet, first and second on the pen, and the specially commended prize.

POOR ICE WEATHER.

The icemen are still living in hope of a harvest, though the weather predictions have "gone back" on them and the expected cold wave has proved to be a sort of summer weather. Yesterday's thaw made walking in many places a very muddy effort, and did not help the ice crop. Today the prospect is no better, though every one but the icemen call it a very pleasant day. There are, however, just at present, more men interested in having ice to cut than there are in having sunshiny weather with the thermometer above 50.

LOW TIDES AND PLENTY OF CLAMS.

The tides of late have been running very high and very low, and advantage has been taken of the latter fact by quite an army of men, who just at present have nothing else to do, and in consequence clams, quahaugs, mussels and oysters have suffered all along the shores of the bay. Some of the amateur clam diggers have secured some very good looking clams. Few, however, found their way to the markets, as there were markets enough at home or among the neighbors. Today, after the high seas of yesterday, Easton's Beach was a favorite place for clammers, looking for big beach clams.

MATILDA ANN.

I knew a charming little girl,
Who'd say, "Oh, see that flower!"
Whenever in the garden
Or woods she spent an hour.
And sometimes she would listen,
And say, "Oh, hear that bird!"
Whenever in the forest
Its clear, sweet note she heard.

But then I knew another—
Much wiser, don't you think?—
Who never called the bird a "bird,"
But said "the songbird."
Or "oriole" or "robin."
Or "wren," as it might be;
She called them all by their first name,
So intimate was she.

And in the woods or garden
She never picked "a flower,"
But "anemone," "hepatica,"
Or "crocus," by the hour.
Both little girls loved birds and flowers,
But one love was the best;
I need not point the moral;
I'm sure you see the rest.

For would it not be very queer,
If when, perhaps you came,
Your parents had not thought worth while
To give you any name?
I think you would be quite upset,
And feel your brain a-whirl,
If you were not "Matilda Ann,"
But just "a little girl."

—[Alice W. Robins, in the Independent.

The industrious man had been trying his best to work while a piano-organ on the street poured forth its dulcet monotones. The friend with an ear for music came in, and, after a pause, exclaimed:

ROBERT E. LEE.

General Robert E. Lee is one of the idols of the Southern states, and is coming more and more to be recognized in all sections as a great military commander. His especial friends and admirers, and especially those who co-operated with him in the war for Southern independence, have just been celebrating the anniversary of his birth, and have paid high tribute to his memory.

The Baltimore News, published about midway between the once contending states, speaks of him in appreciative terms, and it will do our people no harm to quote its estimate of the great commander, who though he lost is yet highly honored. Says the News: "To-day is the birthday of General Robert E. Lee, the great leader of the Confederate side of the civil war and the captain who has been ranked by military critics among the ablest in history. General Lee was born ninety years ago today—something those who saw the war as it passed find it difficult to realize, for when he went into the field to take command of the Southern armies he seemed to be quite a young man, although, indeed, he had already reached middle age. But he was wonderfully alert, vigorous, keen and untiring, and ever ready with all manner of stratagems and expedients, especially toward the end, when his resources had so woefully diminished.

"General Lee has already taken a place among the great men of history. The strength and simplicity of his character give him one of those niches in which none find a pedestal except the noblest and best. He came from a line of fine ancestry, which was most worthy in all seeming to find culmination in himself. Through the war he passed like one of those knightly heroes which cross the distant pages of history without fear and without reproach. Among his most ardent admirers are the men who fought against him. Brave and chivalrous in war, General Lee was not less a figure worthy all reverence and admiration in peace. Conquered, he bowed to fate, saluted the victor and rode away, and no word of complaint, criticism or repining ever came from his lips. Around General Lee, indeed, a certain glamour has grown up; already he seems to belong to the ages of chivalry and romance and to the Galahads and Launcelots."

TORPEDO BOAT NO. 6.

There appears to be a disposition in certain quarters to speak disparagingly of the new torpedo boat No. 6, which is now being tested in these waters. Some of the newspapers abroad were evidently inclined to an unfavorable opinion of the craft, even before her completion and when little or nothing could be known of her comparative merits. And now that she is being tested certain correspondents are not slow to "damn the vessel with faint praise," in the absence of opportunities to do worse. But even then it is charged that misleading reports are sent to the metropolitan press, either by design or want of full knowledge of the facts.

Torpedo boats Nos. 6 and 7, sometimes known as "the twins," are built from plans submitted by the Herreshoffs, and are now to be brought into comparison with others of the same grade, built elsewhere, from plans submitted by the Navy Department. This may or may not have an influence on some minds, but it is quite possible that the law of paternity may not be without influence concerning the offspring of the diverse parentage. It is true that no one believes the newspaper reports emanating from outside Newport are authorized by naval officials, but they are nevertheless, and from necessity, largely based on information obtained from such sources. It is possible that unconsciously the department estimates savor of preferences and prejudices such as might be deemed natural under such circumstances, for even governments' officials do not like to be outdone by private citizens.

Good judges in such matters express the opinion that though in the late trial No. 6 came a fraction short of the prescribed time limit as to speed, she will be able to even surpass that limit under more favorable conditions in the future. The builders have no occasion to go beyond the prescribed figures, as they receive no bonus, such as have been paid in other cases for extra speed. No. 6 will be heard from again and doubtless give a good account of herself.

The New York Evening Post calls attention to the fact that there is much rejoicing among Northern Republicans over the re election of Senator Pritchard of North Carolina, and says: "But no sound-money man can view it with satisfaction. He owes his success entirely to his virtual acceptance of the Populist creed, having secured the support of enough Populist legislators to give him a majority, by promising to vote for free coinage at the ratio of sixteen to one. The only reservation which he makes is that he will not insist upon a free-coinage rider to a tariff bill." That is just the size of this victory, a gain of one vote for free silver, and one for a partisan tariff whenever occasion shall require. Such successes are dearly bought.

The installation of Rev. Dr. McClelland as pastor of the United Congregational Church is a matter of no small significance, not only to that parish but to the city at large. Both church and pastor enter upon the new relation with high hopes for the years to come, and with good reason. The church has had a distinguished pastorate in the past, and under present conditions may well be hopeful for the future.

The Fall River mill owners have agreed upon a curtailment of the output of cotton goods, because of a surplus on the markets. That is what the Daily News has long been saying. We have too many mills instead of too few, and the manufacturing industry needs to be repressed instead of stimulated. Over-production is the cause of hard times in almost every case.

Russell Sage is opposed to the disposition of the government's interest in the Pacific railroads. It may not be an unbiassed opinion, and probably is not. But the people generally will feel that the sooner we get out of partnership with men who make their millions out of the business while the government gets nothing for the money which it has put in, the better.

The Boston reformers are putting in many bills for the re-organization of the Boston school board. "If," the New Bedford Standard thinks, "they would exert half the effort to elect good members that they do to alter the machinery their labors would be more to the purpose."

Ex-Senator Edmunds always had the reputation of level-headedness. Few men are better informed in international law, or can have a higher appreciation of the problems growing out of our foreign relations, and he declares unequivocally in favor of the confirmation of the arbitration treaty.

It was natural and exceedingly appropriate that the claim of Gas Man Addicks for a seat in the Senate should be presented by Senator Chandler of New Hampshire. "Birds of a feather flock together," runs the old proverb.

Queen Victoria is about to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of her reign. It is a length of time to which few monarchs attain, and what is more, her reign has been good as well as long.

THE HARVARD MUSEUM OF COMPARATIVE ZOOLOGY.

Though greatly hampered by lack of funds, much good work has been done in the past year by the Harvard museum of comparative zoology. The curator, Professor Alexander Agassiz, reports many important additions to the collections, especially of casts, and the acquisition of the specimens gathered by the late Professor J. D. Whitney while engaged in the geological survey of California. The library of the museum is growing rapidly, and now contains 30,555 volumes, besides a great number of valuable pamphlets. The Newport marine laboratory has been profitably maintained. The curator appeals for money with which to hire a skilled conchologist. He also gives detailed accounts of the work done by himself on the Florida reefs and the coral reefs of the Pacific, with special attention to the Great Barrier reef, off the coast of Australia. He concludes his personal part of the report with a short sketch of the museum, in which he says: "It is now fifty years since the founder landed in this country. Since his death the museum has more than doubled in size, but its endowment has remained stationary, and its income has decreased with the fall in the rate of interest since 1874. May we not hope in this fiftieth anniversary to obtain the funds necessary to complete the building and to carry on the whole museum on a scale proportional to the demands of a great university?"

COAL ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

It is not at all strange that the manufacturers of the Pacific slope should strongly oppose the suggestions made before the ways and means committee to increase from forty to seventy-five cents per ton the duty upon bituminous coal. One of the natural wants of our Pacific coast states is a good and convenient supply of coal. There is a small deposit of very inferior coal about one hundred miles from San Francisco, and there are also deposits in the state of Washington that are somewhat better in quality, but for purposes of manufacture the people of California are compelled to depend upon coal that comes to them from foreign countries, either from British Columbia, from Australia or around Cape Horn from the United Kingdom. The amount coming from the latter place is small, amounting only to a few thousand tons a year. More than 200,000 tons is obtained annually from Australia, and the shipments from British Columbia are largely in excess of the Australian imports.

As it is, the California manufacturers are compelled to pay a revenue duty to the government on nearly every ton of coal that they use—an exaction which is seriously to their disadvantage in endeavoring to establish manufacturing industries. To increase the duty, as some of the Virginia coal miners suggest, to seventy-five cents a ton, would be equivalent to imposing a tax of $600,000 or $700,000 a year upon the industries of the Pacific slope for no other reason except that nature had not supplied them with the fuel which had been granted to the dwellers in other sections of the country.

So far as our eastern coal producers are concerned, the reduction made in duty from 75 cents to 40 cents a ton has not been productive of any loss of trade. The duty was changed in 1894. In that year there were brought into the port of Boston 41,729 tons of foreign coal. The next year, 1895, our Boston imports of foreign mined bituminous coal had fallen to 21,000 tons. In the meantime the receipts in Boston for American-mined bituminous coal were, in 1894, coming by sea, 958,701 tons, and in 1895 977,762 tons; coming by rail in 1894, 71,303 tons, and in 1895 90,909 tons; that is, under the duty of forty cents per ton, the American producers, so far as the great market of Boston is concerned—and ours is one of the most important in the country—were in no way deprived of their control of business. If they suffered a loss of profits, which is hardly likely, it was one which, considering the close combination that these dealers have among themselves, the people of the United States, through Congress, are hardly in a position to make good to them.—[Boston Herald.

MESCAL COLORS EVEN NEWPORT.

Mescal intoxication, as investigated and described in the New York Herald by Dr. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, yields some curious and interesting peculiarities, but seems not to possess solid advantages sufficient to encourage the opinion that it will supersede the familiar exhilaration produced by John Barleycorn. Dr. Mitchell got some mescal beans from Dr. Prentiss of Washington, who has written about them, and at noon on a busy day took the extract of a bean and a half. At one o'clock he took another bean, at a quarter past four four beans more—six beans and a half within about four hours. His first dose promptly gave him a sense of great gastric discomfort, though not enough to stop him in his work. As he went along he had other symptoms, including, at about 4:30, a slight headache, and at the same time a pleasing and unusual sense of power, which, when tested in difficult work, proved ill based, since he could write no more ably nor make verses more easily nor was reader at figures than usual. But at twenty minutes past five he lay down in a darkened room, and then began to get the particular results that he was expecting. Lights began to appear to him, and for two hours he was the spectator at a display of colors "such," he says, "as I find it hopeless to describe in language which shall convey to others the beauty and splendor of what I saw." He describes enough, however, to give some idea of the mescal fireworks. He saw at first stars and delicate films of floating color; then an abrupt rush of countless points of white light sweeping across the field of view; then darkness; then zigzag lines of very bright colors; then "wonderful lovelinese of swelling clouds, gone before I could name them;" then a white spear that grew up into a great Gothic tower of intricate design, wonderfully illuminated with clusters of colored lights of a satisfying intensity and purity that was beyond words, which shifted, trembled, vibrated, and glowed in incessant motion.

He gives many other details of the exhibition, telling of a huge worm a hundred feet long, which rotated like a Catherine-wheel, and of a vision of the beach at Newport, with marvellous colored waves rushing in, the important feature of the show being always the fairyland colors. Through all this vision, Dr. Mitchell says, he was awake and acutely conscious, and could have described what he saw to a stenographer, as he hopes to do if he tries it again. But he is doubtful about trying, since, he says, he had gastric distress for one day and headache for two, which made it an expensive show. He predicts a perilous reign for the mescal habit when the beans get into the market.—[Harper's Weekly.

INVESTIGATION AT THE LIFE SAVING STATION.

Last night Inspector Thomas D. Walker of the life saving service returned to New York, after a somewhat extended investigation at the Brenton's Point life saving station, in which he was aided by Assistant Superintendent Knowles of this district. The case was started by Captain Kenyon discharging Surfman Charles Yates, on a charge of drunkenness. Yates secured the signatures of the members of the crew to a statement that he was not drunk, and called for an investigation, which was held. After the report had reached Washington another investigation, the one just closed, was held, and to this were brought a large number of witnesses who had not previously been called. According to reports pretty nearly every thing and everybody about the station came in for more or less inquiry, and even the wives of some of the fishermen who during the fishing season occupy the fish houses near the station were called upon to tell what they knew about the proceedings. Just what the outcome of the investigation will be no one hereabouts has any idea at present. So far as the public knows, the station has always been well managed, by both Captain Kenyon and his predecessor, and the captain and crew have always been prompt when their services were needed, and have done good work whenever they had a chance.

NAVAL NOTES.

Assistant Surgeon Henry La Motte is ordered before the retiring board at Washington.

Chief Engineer G. J. Burnap of the Olympia, reported to be unable longer to perform duty at sea, will doubtless be relieved by a younger man familiar with modern machinery.

The orders of Commander E. W. Watson to the Portsmouth navy yard have been revoked, and he is ordered home with two months' leave.

Chief Engineer C. J. Habighurst is detached from the Terror and granted three months' leave, being relieved by Chief Engineer J. P. Mickley, who is detached from inspection duty at Philadelphia for that purpose.

Ensign Ridley McLean is transferred from the Oregon to the Adams.

The court of inquiry appointed to investigate the recent mishap to cruiser Montgomery has finished its labors, and the papers in the case have been taken to Washington by Lieutenant Gleaves, judge advocate of the court. The Montgomery left the yard yesterday for Hampton Roads, Va.

United States steamship Columbia left New York for Hampton Roads yesterday. Following is a list of her officers: Captain J. H. Sands, commanding; Lieutenant Commander C. O. Allibone, executive officer; Lieutenant W. H. Driggs, navigator; Lieutenants De Witt Coffman, W. L. Burdick, J. A. Dougherty and E. A. Anderson; Ensigns J.R. Edie and F. H. Clark, Jr., Naval Cadets (line division) W. R. Cushman, J. H. Holden, W. T. Cluverius and Amos Bronson, Jr.; Surgeon E. Z. Derr, Paymaster Stephen Rand, Chief Engineer W. H. Harris, Passed Assistant Engineer Martin Bevington, Assistant Engineers W. H. McGrann and G. H. Shepard, Naval Cadets (engineer division) Pope Washington and Arthur Crenshaw, Chaplain M. M. Goodwin, First Lieutenant C. L. A. Ingate, marine corps.

The form of the turrets for the Alabama class of battleships was recently brought before Secretary Herbert by Captain Sampson, chief of the bureau of ordnance. The turrets as drawn in the plans of the chief naval constructor were of oval form, the front walls being inclined and the rear walls vertical. Captain Sampson first objected to the form of the turrets with vertical walls. He declared that in his opinion the space in the oval turrets was not sufficient to accommodate the gun crews. Captain Sampson also recommended that the electrical system for operating turrets be applied to all the turrets of battleship Iowa, and advised placing the system in the turrets for the Kearsarge, the Kentucky, the Illinois, the Alabama and the Wisconsin. Mr. Hichborn is opposed to this innovation. He says that the system has not yet received a practical trial at sea and that the test made at the dock with the Brooklyn's turret was not sufficiently arduous to indicate the stability and value of the system. He believes that there should be an exhaustive trial of this motor.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 8 A. M. Forecast till 8 P. M. Saturday. For Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut—Increasing cloudiness tonight; probably light snow, followed by partly cloudy weather, Saturday; southerly to northwesterly winds, brisk and high on the coast Saturday; colder Saturday afternoon.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, Jan. 22, 8 A. M. For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight; fair Saturday, except local snow flurries in the morning; colder Saturday evening and night; westerly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

A storm prevails in the lake regions today, travelling eastward. Snow is falling as far east as Rochester, also south of Cincinnati and Pittsburg. The snowfall is not heavy, and the storm is not especially energetic at present. The lowest barometer reported is 29.52 inches, at Marquette, Mich. Following the storm is fair weather and much lower temperature. There has been a great temperature fall in the Northwest, the fall averaging thirty to fifty degrees from the Dakotas northward over the British territories. The mercury is below zero in the Dakotas, and 30 degrees below at some places over the boundary line. The temperature has also fallen decidedly in the South Atlantic states. Yesterday's storm is in the eastern provinces today. Heavy snowfalls are reported at Montreal, Quebec and farther east. This storm probably gave a large snowfall in the interior of New England. The weather is again threatening in western New England, owing to the approach of the new storm. The temperature range at 8 o'clock was from 80, at Eastport, to 34, at Boston.

SENATORS PROTEST.

Object to Comment Concerning Cuba and the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—In the Senate today Mr. Turple, (Dem., Ind.) gave notice that he would ask the Senate Monday next to take up the Cameron resolution for the recognition of the republic of Cuba; and he went on to comment upon Secretary Olney's remarks on the subject, which he characterized as "obiter dictum," and also upon the newspaper statement of a conference between Secretary Olney and Senator Sherman, the premier of the incoming administration, to the effect that there was an agreement entered into that there would be no action by the Senate at the present session in regard to Cuba. This newspaper statement Mr. Sherman declared to be without the slightest foundation.

This episode was followed by another, more striking, on the subject of the arbitration treaty. Numerous letters had been presented by Senator Cullom (Repu., Ill.), written to himself, some in favor of the treaty and some against it; and when Mr. Hoar (Repu., Mass.) sent to the clerk's desk other memorials on the same subject he took occasion to give his views upon the propriety of outside interference with the Senate in the consideration of a treaty. He condemned the intemperate zeal of the pulpit and of the press and of college professors, and of good men generally, and reminded them that the Senate is part of the treaty-making power. While it is considering the various points of a treaty, it is not proper for outside people to urge upon it immediate and inconsiderate action.

Senator Sherman expressed his concurrence in Mr. Hoar's views, and so did Senators Cullom and Lodge; while, on the other hand, Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) declared that he preferred to see the public take a keen interest in the matter rather than show indifference about it. The debate on the treaty was participated in by Senators Hawley, Sewall and Stewart. The latter entered into a discussion of the merits of the treaty, and when he concluded some criticism of his violation of the rules was expressed. Senator Hill was just starting to speak when Senator Morgan objected to further debate, and the regular order was proceeded with. The Senate then, at 1:10 o'clock, took up the Military Academy appropriation bill.

THE PACIFIC RAILROADS.

Commission Bill Reported, But the Government Will Foreclose.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Senate committee on Pacific railroads today favorably reported to the Senate the bill introduced by Chairman Gear, providing for the appointment of a committee consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of the Interior and the Attorney General, to settle the indebtedness of the Pacific railroads.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—It was decided at the cabinet meeting today to begin foreclosure proceedings against the Pacific railroads at once. The line of procedure will be as indicated by the Attorney General in his annual report.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

A Brief Session and a Long Recess in Prospect.

[Special despatch to the News.]

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 22.—For several years the January session of the General Assembly has been greatly shortened by a long recess before the state election. The part of the session preceding the recess has been very brief and unimportant. Last year the legislature was in session only two weeks before taking a recess, and this year it is proposed that the time shall be only one week; that is a legislature week of four days. The session will begin next Tuesday, and probably the recess will be begun Friday.

Only two important matters will be acted upon, the annual appropriation bill for the expenses of the state, and the resolution for the appointment of a commission to revise the state constitution. The resolution in regard to this latter matter was passed by the senate at the May session in Newport, and it is proposed that the house concur in its passage next Wednesday. The resolution calls for the appointment by the governor of a bi-partisan commission of nine members, with instructions to report the result of its labors to the General Assembly. After the state election the first week in April the legislature will resume its sessions.

CREATLY EXAGGERATED.

Plague in India Not Spreading Among Europeans.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In the House of Commons today Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India, stated that Lord Sandhurst, governor-general of Bombay, had informed the Indian office by telegraph that alarmist telegrams greatly exaggerating the plague situation as regards the spread of the contagion to Europeans were being sent from Bombay to Europe by press representatives and others. Thus far, Lord Sandhurst wired, only four Europeans had died from the plague, including a physician and a nurse.

Government's Monthly Crop Report Delayed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The monthly crop report of the Agricultural Department, which usually makes its appearance on the tenth of each month, was delayed this month on account of the failure of a number of the correspondents to send their data in time, but will come out Monday next.

Every woman has natural curiosity to see how other women furnish their homes. To satisfy this the Ladies' Home Journal will publish during the year interior photographic views of a hundred of the most artistic, cheerful and comfortable homes in America. These will show in detail the construction, fitting and furnishing of parlors, drawing-rooms, halls, reception, music, sitting, dining, bed and bath rooms, kitchens, porches, piazzas, etc. This unique series will be full of excellent ideas for every housekeeper or home-maker. It will present views of the interior of houses of moderate cost, which are fitted and furnished with conspicuous good taste, and at comparatively small expense.

COMMON PLEAS COURT.

The Law as to Nuisances Minutely Considered.

The court resumed its session this morning, Judge Douglas coming in at 9:35 o'clock. Mr. Nolan, counsel for Daniel Howland of Jamestown, stated that his client was prepared to plead to the indictment against him. He pleaded not guilty, bail was fixed at $5,000, the same as in the lower court, and the same bondsmen were accepted.

Mr. Sheffield announced that the case of State vs. Thomas McCarty was discontinued, and that of State vs. Rose Williams was continued by Chief of Police Read.

The case of Parsons vs. Tilley was marked for trial Monday, and that of J. T. Reagan against C. G. Polleys for trial Wednesday.

At 9:45 the case of State vs. Samuel R. Honey, on appeal from the decision of the district court, came up. At that time the courtroom was not very well filled, the jurors forming a considerable portion of those present. Before the case was finished, however, the courtroom was filled to overflowing. A jury was empanelled without much difficulty, but three men being challenged. Herman F. Peckham of Middletown was appointed foreman.

Mr. Sheffield, for the state, said this was a case brought by Inspector of Nuisances W. F. Wyatt, for the board of health, against Samuel R. Honey, owner of the premises at 10 Madison court, for permitting a nuisance calculated to injure health and annoy the neighbors. Action was brought under section 4 of chapter 24 of the city ordinances. Mr. Sheffield might have added that in the district court trial Mr. Honey held that the tenant who created the nuisance, and not the landlord, is the proper person to be called to abate it. The decision in that court was against Mr. Honey, who appealed to the common pleas division; hence this trial.

William F. Wyatt, inspector of nuisances of the city of Newport, took the stand and testified in regard to the premises at 10 Madison court, near the "high bridge," off Walnut street, owned by Mr. Honey. According to witness's record, he found September 19, 1896, the sink drain discharging on top of the ground, without cesspool or sewer connection. He had visited all the premises on the court, and saw the filth working out from under this house, where the sink drain goes through the floor, stopping at about the level of the under side of the floor joist, about six inches from the ground. A large body of filth had collected there. He told of reporting to the board of health, of the notice by mail to the agent of the property, and October 21, 1896, at 10:35 A. M. he served a notice in writing on Mr. Honey. The premises are unchanged to the present day. November 7 he had another interview with Mr. Honey, saying he had sworn out a warrant, and unless the nuisance were abated he should have the warrant served. In cross-examination he said he thought the drain was of galvanized iron, rusted and corroded and covered with filth. Mr. Honey did say the tenant in possession was the owner—the tenant, in law, was the owner.

Dr. Barker, president of the board of health, briefly testified, and the deed of the premises to Mr. Honey, dated March 19, 1895, was put in, without objection. George C. Shaw, executive officer of the board of health, who last visited the premises December 31, 1896, fully corroborated Inspector Wyatt and said he placarded a house in the neighborhood for diphtheria.

A. O. D. Taylor, Jr., who was under summons to testify, did not appear. Colonel Sheffield desired to prove by him that he (Mr. Taylor) had charge of the property for Mr. Honey (who admits being the "landlord"); that Mr. Taylor, who had usually taken action when notified by the authorities, was notified in this case, and would have acted but for a special notice from Mr. Honey not to do so. Mr. Honey admitted that Mr. Taylor would, if present, testify substantially to so much of this as was admissible.

Then Mr. Honey, who was his own counsel, took the stand and was sworn, being the only witness for the defense. He testified that he was defendant. Julia Sprague was his tenant from year to year, rent payable quarterly. As such tenant she had exclusive possession of the property. He never had possession; she was in possession when he bought the premises, and he took the title subject to her tenancy. In cross-examination he said he is what the law calls a "reversioner," and (possibly inadvertently) used the word "owned" in saying that he knew about the letting from the conditions of tenancy "since I have owned the property."

Colonel Sheffield called Welcome Sprague, who gave evidence (that Mr. Honey "welcomed" as news) that the renting of the place was from month to month, the pay quarterly. He lives with his mother, and is familiar with the transactions.

Mr. Honey argued for the defense. As there was no controversy as to facts, he addressed himself entirely to the court on questions of law, and once more the jury had little more to do than to sit on their reserved seats, above the reach of danger, and as disinterested spectators look down into the arena upon the battle that waged below. Mr. Honey made a very interesting picture of a possible new war, in which Mrs. Sprague could be seen pelting Mr. Honey's men with stones or bricks, and a "small clamp" might have to be affixed to the door to preserve quiet while his gang of men put in a sink drain; her washing, in the meantime, or the preparation of her Christmas dinner, being seriously interfered with. Then, the scene changing, Mrs. Sprague was pictured in converse with Colonel Sheffield, telling her wrongs, and Colonel Sheffield was described as saying: Good case; got him; action of trespass; sue out a writ and arrest him. And then, it was added, it would "get into the Daily News."

The court asked: "You don't contend that the 'owner' here means the State of Rhode Island?" Mr. Honey said no; it means the tenant. He had great respect for Judge Baker, had been and should be his friend; but evidently Mr. Honey did not think the judge who was to try the case should have first drawn the warrant—a lawyer coming to an opinion is apt to stick to it. Had the judge conferred with Mr. Honey, instead of putting him in the position of a defendant in a criminal case, there might have been better results. Unfortunately Mr. Honey is owner of other property, and it is absolutely necessary for him to be guided by principle. Once a long ordinance was passed, without his knowledge, to cause him to clean a vault. It was his view, and he was counsel for the Sanitary Protection Society, that a tenant must clean up his own filth. They waited until the tenant was out, and passed the ordinance. Mr. Honey, in ten minutes, had it cleaned; he always did when tenants were out. The court intimated his inclination to believe that the Newport ordinance (in this case) was first passed, and then enacted into a general law for all towns.

Mr. Honey referred to the law regarding liquor nuisances (a most beneficent law, he thought), which especially confers on owners the right to proceed at once to the premises, take the tenant by the neck and put him out. Mr. Honey had used this law. The General Assembly might have given authority to a landlord to enter premises in cases like that on trial; as the law stands, had he entered, an action of trespass would have lain, and it must be that in this law owner means tenant in possession. Take the cases of legal title in fee, equitable title in fee, tenancy for life, tenancy from year to year, tenancy from month to month—all these can be carved (exist at the same time) out of the fee.

The court said he had very great doubt if section 4 applied at all to this case. Mr. Honey said he wanted to state his position fully; he is charged with being a law breaker, whereas he desires to uphold the law. He then mentioned, as another instance in which complications might arise under this law, the case of the Holly Tree Inn, with eighteen owners, one of whom is occupant. The court interposed to say that he understood "owner" to refer to landlord, but the landlord is not guilty of the nuisance of the tenant; the complaint would go against whichever of the two does the act. He (the court) thought that faulty construction is dealt with elsewhere. This was the court's first impression of the matter. Mr. Honey took his seat, and this practically settled the case, for although Colonel Sheffield made spirited and repeated attempts to urge the city's side of the case, and, it being a criminal case, no exceptions could be taken by the city to get the case before the appellate division, and although it is a matter of great importance to know who is responsible in such nuisance cases, the court, after seeming to find a possible method to get the case to the appellate division (when Colonel Sheffield said he felt certain the three judges would sustain the complaint), decided that the case must rest on its merits, and directed a verdict of not guilty, which was drawn up in the form used in civil suits and signed by the foreman. The court said section 4 does not apply to this case, but if the complaint had been drawn under section 16 it would have been all right. (He had previously complimented the ordinance).

Robert J. Cary, who took hens, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to sixty days in the Providence County jail and costs.

At 11:34 the court adjourned to Monday at 11:30, the hour for Mondays, hereafter, until the railroad changes its time table.

TORPEDO BOAT NO. 6.

Torpedo boat No. 6 this noon in all probability equaled her contract speed, 27½ knots, which is approximately thirty miles an hour. No time was taken, but the statement is based on the previous work of the boat by persons acquainted with all the previous tuning-up trials. This speed was reached not by use of her full boiler capacity, but with two hundred pounds, twenty-five short of the allowance. It is therefore now easy to see that with the intelligent and daring force required for torpedo boat service the capacity of the craft will far exceed contract requirements. Today's run was not over the measured mile, where timing was easy, but over the eight-mile course, which has been laid out from Sandy point, Prudence, to Bull point, at the Dumplings.

The purpose of the trial was to train the fire force in the maintenance of constant pressure over an extended run, such as will be required on the government test.

Today the steaming results are due in a great measure to the work of firemen from the Cushing, who have been anxious to get into the No. 6's fireroomns and show the trial force a thing or two. Today this was, granted, and the boilers fired by the naval men were blowing off more than half the time. The experience of the men and their acquaintance with the danger of such high pressures went for much, and it is becoming apparent that such talent in the engine room would be very valuable if it could be secured.

Near the end of the trial the piston rod of one of the engines showed a tendency to heat, which if discovered earlier and given more oil would probably have permitted another trial to be made tomorrow.

There will be several more of these trials for the training of the engine and fireroom forces, and it is possible that the latter part of next week the boat will go in dry dock, which means that orders for the official trial may soon be issued.

Torpedo boat Cushing was hauled out on the station ways this afternoon, for cleaning.

THE PLYMOUTH AND THE JOHN INGLIS.

A despatch from Fall River says: The John Inglis, the new propeller of the Portland & New York line, and the Plymouth of the Fall River line had an exciting and closely contested race last night. The Inglis left the East river yesterday afternoon a few minutes ahead of the Plymouth. They ran slowly till Long Island sound was reached, when both put on steam, and they were within hailing distance of each other till Point Judith had been reached. Here they separated, with the Plymouth less than five minutes in the lead. This is the second brush in a week, the former being a draw.

When you seek advice from ANY ONE dealing in glasses? Having glasses for sale does not make an optician or one competent to help you. The person whom you consult should have a thorough knowledge of the anatomy of the eye and its functions, and, by EXPERIENCE, be able to SCIENTIFICALLY examine these organs and PRESCRIBE INTELLIGENTLY for your defect. ROWDY COLLEGE BOYS.

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 22.—A riot was precipitated here last night by the Sophomores of the University of Illinois, who came over from Champaign to break up the annual social of the Freshmen. Mayor George Hubbard has been apprised of what was likely to happen, and had on duty at the entrance to the hall a large extra force of police. When a band of more than three hundred Sophomores charged on the hall they were driven back by the police. After the episode the crowd appeared to break away, but the leaders went to the second story of a building just across the alley opposite the opera house, and threw missiles which broke eight window panes. Through the openings they cast large quantities of the chemical known among students as "eye water." Not being satisfied with this, however, they made an attack on the entrance to the opera house, and at this point in the proceedings Mayor Hubbard ordered out the fire department, and two streams of cold water were turned on the crowd of revellers. They withstood the deluge for a few minutes, but finally beat a hasty retreat down the street. Miss Della Redabaugh was struck in the eyes by a quantity of the chemicals, and received serious injuries.

OREGON'S TWO HOUSES.

One Organized Temporarily and the Other Permanently.

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 22.—The house met yesterday afternoon, the roll-call showing thirty-three members present. The chamber was packed with a large crowd, as it was generally known that an attempt would be made to organize with a majority, instead of by two thirds of the members. When Temporary Chairman Davis called the house to order, Brown, of Morrow, moved that they proceed to form a temporary organization by calling Smith, of Marion, to the chair. Representative Riddle protested, but Smith took the chair. Chief Justice Moore was sent for, and swore in thirty-one of the members who were present. The house then elected permanent officers, and adjourned until 10 o'clock today. Thus Oregon at present has two houses, one organized temporarily and the other permanently.

HOPES NOT.

Lyman J. Gage of Chicago Not Anxious to be Secretary of the Treasury.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—When seen last night in regard to the report from Canton that President-elect McKinley had sent an emissary to this city to ascertain if he would accept the position of Secretary of the Treasury, Lyman J. Gage said: "I only hope that the report is not true, for the financial considerations involved in accepting the position would not be favorable to me. I do not know of any one who has gone to Canton in my behalf. I do not know Major McKinley at all intimately. If the position should be offered to me, it would be a matter of very careful consideration whether I should accept it or not."

LORD SALISBURY ON ARBITRATION.

Nothing could be better than the tone of the speeches in Parliament on arbitration and on the general relations between England and the United States. Lord Salisbury, it is true, seemed disposed to minimize the effect and scope of the arbitration treaty. It is his usual habit of mind. Enthusiasm is not his chief quality. People must not think they are living in the millennial dispensation, said the Prime Minister. Nor do they. But he accurately described arbitration as likely to get rid of that infinite number of small differences which, sometimes exaggerated, cause irritation and enmity. And there is a profound truth in his remark about the two nations who understand each other so well that unless they are friends they are almost certain to be enemies.

Not less happy was Lord Salisbury's suggestion that arbitration is likely to cause the diminution of militarism. Europe is the victim of her own fears and precautions. Once let even a tendency be established to substitute judicial decisions for "the coarse arbitrament of war" and it will lead to the gradual disappearance of the vast existing armaments. It is not possible to measure the increase to human happiness were the burdens of preparation for war lessened. Removed entirely they may never be—even here we have a little standing army—but if the blood tax and money tax and tax on the industrial resources of the great Powers cannot be entirely abolished it may be reduced to less intolerable proportions. That is to be one of the blessings of arbitration.—[New York Herald.

ADVANCE OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE.

Motor vehicles ("automotives" is the name recommended for them) have begun to be matter for serious reflection in England. Major Flood Page, who lectured about them the other day before the London Chamber of Commerce, speculated as to the results of their introduction, and named as among the industries that would be affected "petroleum, secondary-battery manufacturers, mechanical engineers, and allied trades; coach, car, wagon, and carriage builders, and allied trades; agriculture in many branches, railway companies, and, last but by no means least, the war department of every country in the world." He expects them as they grow common to interfere more or less with trades connected with omnibuses, cabs and horses, but to provide work for more men than they displace, just as railways did when they drove out coaches. He believes that in the country districts of England they will do what canals have done in Holland, and make communication so easy that the rush of perishable produce to market will be greatly quickened and increased. They will change the whole face of war, he thinks, and be used to move guns and do all transport work.

In Paris automotives are in use. In London they are in sight, in New York they are still only in prospect. An automotive fire truck, to be run by a compressed-air gas engine, has been devised by a Brooklyn man, and has come so near real existence as to have its picture in the newspapers. It is a terrific-looking creation, and as an engine of destruction seems fit to make a cable car on a curve seem like a child's toy.—[Harper's Weekly.

NEW SENATORS.

Kenney of Delaware Will be Given His Seat.

The election of Kenney, a silver man, as Senator from Delaware, will not change previous calculations as to the complexion of the Senate. These calculations have been on the basis of Pritchard being elected in North Carolina and a silver Democrat in Delaware. This would leave neither party in control of the next Senate and make the matter of the passage of the tariff bill at the extra session a matter of manipulation. If Kenney is elected he will appear at once to take the oath of office, as the vacancy now exists. This will insure his being seated. If the election were not to take effect until after the fourth of March the Republicans would probably be able to keep the seat vacant until the contest re-opened in behalf of Dupont could be acted on, but in the present Senate there appear to be enough votes to give Kenney the seat if he appears with credentials. Four of five senators who voted for Dupont before may now be counted on to take the other side of the case now and to vote for the seating of a silver man. This will give Kenney the seat if he is elected by the present Delaware legislature, but the contest will be pending if Mr. Dupont is disposed to press it.

If the case should be pressed in the next Congress it would require an affirmative vote of a majority to vacate the seat again, and the vote of the sitting senator would count in his own favor. Pritchard's election in North Carolina today contributes greatly to the favorable prospects of tariff legislation, but it does not give the Republicans control of the Senate in a party sense.

It does not seem possible for the new Senate to be in general sympathy with the incoming national administration for the first two years, but those who are most interested have satisfied themselves that there is no reason to apprehend serious complications on the tariff. It is understood that if Dubois is defeated in Idaho his successor will surely be a man who will vote for protection. In Washington state the situation is such that, while none but a silver man can be elected, the man chosen to succeed Squire will vote for a tariff bill. Squire may succeed himself, with the understanding that he will vote for protection. Moreover, it is possible that one of two of the bolting silver senators will vote with the Republicans on this one question.

The situation as to the Senate is not such as to cause the Republicans any uneasiness. For several reasons it is thought by some of the leaders to be just as well that they should not be held responsible for the Senate, so long as they can be sure of passing a tariff bill, which is the only economic legislation they are prepared for on the opening of the administration.

The election of Mason in Illinois was a surprise to the Republicans in Congress. The latest information, conveyed in telegrams to Illinois representatives just before the adjournment of the House, was that Hitt was going to be united on. Mason's election is gratifying to the McKinley people, however, and his selection is said to increase Cullom's chances to go to the head of the Treasury Department. Mason is a man of ability, but his easy manners are liable to disturb the peace of mind of the dignified Senate. Mr. Mason will find a warm welcome awaiting him here. His good fellowship, many stories and cheerful nature made him many friends when he was in Congress, and such of those friends as are still here have been using their telegraph franks today sending him congratulations. It is expected he will touch up the staid and musty Senate now and then.

Chicago representatives who are here have this to say on the result of the caucus:

Representative Cooke said: "I predict for Mason a brilliant success. He will be a new factor in our politics, but his election will not affect the machine in any way."

Representative Foss said: "It's a triumph of the people. Mason's election means cleaner politics for Illinois. It is the legitimate outcome of the methods of the machine during the past year. Had a machine man won, the machine would have run things with a high hand. Billy deserves election. He has worked hard for it during the past four years, and has in that time done much good for the party. He'll make a good senator, and if he oversteps the Senate rules now and then, it will lend to the gayety of nations and do no harm."

Representative Aldrich said: "I think Mason will acquit himself acceptably in the Senate."

Representative Belknap said: "I have no doubt that Mason will prove to Illinois that in choosing him, the people treasured up for themselves nothing to regret."—[Washington Star.

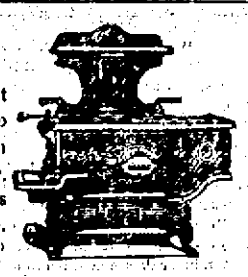

SYSTEM IN SLEEPING.

The daily rule for sleeping and eating for the average child is that it should, when one month old, be fed every two hours from 5 A. M. to 11 P. M., sleeping from that time until 5 A. M. again. At three months it should be fed every two and one half hours from 5 A. M. to 10 P. M., sleeping from 10 P. M. to 6 A. M. At six months it should be fed every three hours from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M., sleeping from 9 P. M. to 6 A. M. At one year of age a child should be fed at 7, 10, 2, 6 and 9 o'clock. The first and last meals should be given to the child in bed, from the bottle, while the other three meals should be fed from bowl and spoon, in order to begin the weaning process.

During the fast of the night there should be always ready by the bedside a thoroughly clean nursing bottle filled with water that has been boiled. If the baby is wakeful, fretful or hungry, allow him to nurse from this. A few swallows will suffice to calm him. The ordinary heat of the chamber will render the water warm enough for a child in health. If the infant is delicate or ill, the drinking water must be warmed to 98 degrees Fahrenheit in a cup of water placed over an alcohol lamp on the table. Sometimes when a baby is breast-fed it will not drink even water from a nursing bottle, in which case it is necessary to moisten its mouth as often as it cries, with a fine soft white cloth saturated with water. An older child should be fed with water from a spoon. Water the child must have, and in abundance, during the troublesome nights when the habit of sleep is not yet established and the desire for night meals is not thoroughly overcome.

Besides this most important sleep at night, regular day naps must be established as soon as possible. A new-born babe should, and usually does, sleep most of the time; but if it is of a nervous temperament, there is danger, as it grows older, that it will fall into the habit of catching short naps at odd moments, and of indulging in no profound lasting rest during the whole day. By the time a child is three months old it should have formed the habit of sleeping about eight hours at night, and of napping at least two and one-half hours twice during the day. The intervals after the 10 A. M. and 3 P. M. feedings are the most favorable times for rest.—[Harper's Bazar.

The Geo. A. Weaver Co., Newport, R. I.

GENTS: Yours of the 8th asking me in regard to M. L. Shoemaker & Co.'s "Swift Sure" Fertilizer is at hand. I have sold and used these goods for fourteen years, using only one carload the first year. From that time on there has been a largely increased demand for the Swift Sure brand. I KNOW OF NO FERTILIZER ON THE MARKET WHICH SHOWS AS GOOD RESULTS IN THE FIELD. I am aware that some other goods make as good in dollars in the chemist's laboratory in costing less money perhaps. My long and large experience with fertilizers has proved to me conclusively that for field work it will not do to accept chemists' commercial valuation in choosing fertilizers for our crops. For instance, for my own farm I would not give half price for the best ROCK OR BONE BLACK SUPERPHOSPHATES you ever saw, for the reason that neither Rock or Bone Black has much value unless treated heavily with sulphuric acid—Rock requiring 700 lbs. or more for every 1000 lbs., and Black about 75 per cent as much. This is true, but not generally understood, and to a certain extent this holds true with any bone requiring a large percentage of Sul. acid. The great secret of the success of the "Swift Sure" bone meal is that Sul. acid is not used at all in its preparation, and in its manufacture all the nitrogen in the raw material is preserved, while in all steamed or boiled bone a large percentage of the nitrogen is lost, the superphosphates being made from the pure Super Bone Meal requiring only a very small quantity of acid—not enough to notice any unfavorable results. My first claim in this was derided at by one of our agricultural chemists, who has since said to me that some experiments of his have proved I was right in my conclusions. Pure bone goods, properly prepared like "Swift Sure," are the cheapest to use in the fields, though they may cost more to buy.

In writing you as I have, I have given you my experience for many years, using on an average over 100 tons per year, not all one thing by any means.

Respectfully yours,

CAPTURED A TRAIN.

Daring Deed of a Cuban Commander in Full View of Havana.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 22.—Passengers by the Olivette, bringing Havana news of January 20, report the circumstances of the most daring deed performed by the rebels during the war. The hero in the affair is Nestor Aranguren, commanding the Cuban forces in Havana province. The train leaving Regla station, opposite Havana, at 10 P. M., was derailed a kilometre and a half on the way to Guanabacoa by two dead cattle placed on the road. Fifty men lying in waiting instantly, with levelled guns and drawn machetes, ordered all to remain quiet. The civilian passengers, especially the ladies, were assured that no harm would be done them; the men were deprived of hats and coats. No other theft was committed. All the military men were ordered to leave the train. Corporal Francisco Veuto, offering resistance, was given seven machete cuts and seriously wounded. One man who tried to escape was killed. The engineer and fireman were ordered to leave the train and follow the rebels, but were released soon afterward. When all the prisoners were together, the rebels started to march a distance of a kilometre, where Aranguren, with the rest of his men, had remained hidden. As soon as a junction was formed the whole body disappeared. The prisoners included three captains, seven lieutenants and four privates. In order to appreciate the importance of the deed it is necessary to know that it took place three minutes' ride from Regla, opposite the last houses of the town, in full view of Havana, and only one hundred yards from a Spanish detachment of twenty-five soldiers.

Monday morning the report reached Havana that all had been released with the exception of Lieutenant Barros and a brakeman. The released Spanish officers have since expressed their appreciation of the courteous treatment they received. They had a friendly conversation with Aranguren, in which the Cuban question was discussed. Aranguren tried to convince them that Spain's efforts to crush the revolution were powerless before the Cubans' determination to fight to the end.

The party marched all night, and arrived early in the morning at the San Luis camp, near Campo Florido. There their captain took the names of all, and had a council of war. They found that Barros was a Cuban, and decided to hang him as a traitor to his country, and the brakeman as a spy. Barros was hanged upon a tree, and a sign placed on his body, saying: "Acts like this are regrettable, but it is necessary to give an example; there are so many traitors. Inside the pocket a communication will be found. It is urgent that this reach the military commander." On the brakeman's body was placed another sign, saying "Hung as a spy." The communication was addressed to General Weyler, and was a short note telling of the capture of the train and the treatment accorded to the prisoners.

FAVORS FREER TRADE.

Premier Laurier Hopes for Better Relations with the United States.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Premier Laurier, speaking at a public meeting here last night on Canadian trade extension, said it had long been his opinion that commercial relations between Canada and the United States should be more friendly than they are at present. The Canadian government intends to have, so far as it can, better trade relations with the United States, but if that means hostility to England it will have none of it. It is the boast of Canadians that they do not believe the sun shines on a freer country than this, and they feel grateful to the great empire which protects their liberty. It was with these sentiments that he wished to approach the government of the United States. If it were his duty and privilege to go to the United States and speak of better trade relations between Canada and that country, he would say: "We come here not as suppliants but as free men, to talk business with free men; and if you will accept a basis of relations upon this ground let us at once negotiate; but if you expect that we come here simply to starve the country to which we belong, we shall do nothing of the kind."

ORIGIN OF NEWSPAPER EXTRAS.

Doubtless few know that the New York Journal of Commerce originated what is popularly known as a newspaper extra. When this occurred times were troublesome in Europe, and the great revolution of 1830 was approaching. Naturally America was anxious for early news, and all the newspapers of New York equipped small boats that cruised about the harbor, waylaying the large packet vessels arriving from abroad to get the tidings. The Journal of Commerce conceived the plan of sending out a small schooner to intercept the packets two or three days ahead of their arrival. The originators of the plan were laughed at, and told that it would in the end ruin them. Results proved otherwise, however, and when the semaphoric telegraph announced their schooner in the offing, and later coming up the bay, the crowd would gather around the office of the paper. They had to wait until the extra evening edition was ready, and then one of the partners would sometimes read the news aloud to hundreds of citizens, while thousands of copies were sold. This schooner was the first American news-boat of any size.—[Harper's Round Table.

In Scribner's "American History Series" a new volume will shortly be issued. It will be called "The Middle Period," and is written by John W. Burgess, professor of history, political science and constitutional law in Columbia University. It is a thoroughly original work, written exclusively from the sources, and is distinguished for its impartiality in treating of the great slavery controversy, of which it is the chronicle and the commentary. It is written from the judicial standpoint of the constitutional lawyer rather than of the politician or the philanthropist, and as it gives chapter and verse substantiation of its every position, it is expected to revolutionize public opinion in several vital particulars.

THE TARIFF HEARINGS.

Manufacturers Alone Appear before the Committee.

The tariff hearings before the ways and means committee are what such hearings have always been, and what will always be so long as it is the understanding that the government is to continue to exercise its taxing power for the benefit of private citizens and special industries. An invitation to appear at Washington issued to persons interested in changing an existing tariff is invariably accepted by the manufacturers as an official announcement that another change is about to be offered them to get something more out of the tax payers. They flock to Washington, therefore, with requests for more, while the consumers remain at home. The latter are as deeply interested as the protected manufacturers, but they do not go to Washington to state their grievances, for they are many and are not united, and only very rarely some one thinks of going for them. From one point of view the consumers are more seriously concerned than the manufacturers, for they pay the bills. Last year the consumers of the country paid to the treasury directly in tariff taxes $169,500,000, and many times more than that, of course, in the increase in the prices of domestic goods, made possible by the high tariff taxes on the foreign competing articles.

A hearing before the ways and means committee is a holiday for those who are seeking more protection, which means more wealth bestowed upon them by the government at the expense of the consumers. Now and then some member of the minority of the committee suggests that the tax payers should be considered, and brings out something on the cross-examination of some seeker after government assistance which shows how little thought is wasted on the feelings or wishes of those who pay the taxes. At the very outset of these hearings, for example, Mr. McMillan discovered a manufacturer of chlorate of potash who wishes to impose a tax of seventy per cent on the foreign product, in order that he may sell his own product at a much higher price than that which he is able to charge at present. This higher price is to be charged for an article of general use, not because its worth or scarcity commands the extra price, but the law is to be invoked in order that this one manufacturer and fifty workingmen—no more all told—may prosper in business which otherwise cannot pay its expenses in this country. The seeker after benefits humorously explained that the increased price that he would charge would not be greater than that which the consumer used to pay. Therefore it is to be presumed the victim would soon get used to the additional burden, and, perhaps even enjoy it. The government used to charge twenty-five cents for carrying a letter from Boston to Washington, and now we pay two cents for the same service. If some express company should suggest to the government that it turn over the postal service to it, and permit it to charge for the same service what the people used to pay in the early century, the proposition would, of course, be regarded as an emanation of lunacy; but if the expressman were taken seriously at all, he would be looked upon as a selfish cynic who, with his own pecuniary advantage, was not unwilling to bring the government into actual and threatening conflict with the people.

There is a good deal of this cynicism underlying the appeals for more protection. In this hearing it has been disclosed not only by the manufacturer of potash, but by others. When the Wilson act was passed, Senator Aldrich, speaking for the cotton manufacturers of New England, expressed complete satisfaction with the cotton schedule. Indeed, it is well known that the cotton manufacturers practically made the schedule. But now Mr. Chace, of Mr. Aldrich's own state, is on hand, swift to take advantage of one more opportunity to prevail upon the government to help him and his fellows at the expense of the general public, to get a little higher price for their goods. Even the condemned and hated sugar trust sends its agent to Washington for the purpose of looking after its interest and getting a little more support for it. There is a general feeling, apparently, that the government should exercise all its taxing power for the purpose of preventing a fall in prices. Inventions and discoveries, despite the law, have actually brought down the cost of the necessaries of life by enormously reducing the cost of production, but the beneficiaries of the protective system, during the twenty-two or three years in which the most marvelous strides have been made in cheapening production, have done their utmost, through the taxing power of the government, to prevent the benefits of this modern progress from reaching the consumers. The argument of the potash man has always been handy. Let the consumers continue to pay the prices to which they have been accustomed, to bear the burdens to which their backs are used. The blessings of cheapened production belong to those who profit by tariff taxes, not to those who pay them.

We say all this not only because it is true, not only because the ways and means committee room is once more the gathering-place of hungry seekers after public alms, but because the present attempt to secure additional plunder is especially inopportune. We have not spoken of the plan to revise the tariff as one for the purpose of procuring more revenue, because not a single person of any influence or power in Congress has shown the slightest desire to devise or favor any method for increasing the revenues. If the ways and means committee had set about the task of securing more revenue, Mr. Dingley would not have invited the manufacturers to Washington to tell him and his associates how much more protection they wanted. He would not have invited statistical experts who could tell him the revenue-producing tax on each article. He did not ask for expert opinion on this point, and he did ask the manufacturers to express their wants. Therefore it appears that this is a movement for more plunder, and not a movement for more revenue. This movement, we repeat, is especially inopportune at this time, because it is a historical fact that the Bryan revolt is a bad outcome of a proper protest against just such legislation as Mr. Dingley and his associates, political and manufacturing, have in contemplation.

For the Republican leaders thus to insist on further protection, and on making such ostentatious display of their intention to use the power they have acquired for the purpose of enacting new class legislation for the beneficiaries of protection, is to invite a greater and more dangerous revolt against the institutions of the country than that which Bryan led. They have sowed the wind, and they and the country have had a terrible warning of the crop that we shall gather if they persist in their old policy. We heard much talk during the campaign of a tariff for revenue. We heard it especially from Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hanna. We have hoped that this talk might mark the beginning of a new Republican policy. If any Republican leader be sincere, if he be able and willing to send one ray of enlightened policy into the dull and sordid spirit that has for so many years governed his party, let him urge his fellow-partisans to drop the present agitation, which must cost the country millions of dollars, and to accept the plan suggested by Assistant Secretary Hamlin of a commission of experts, who will frame a revenue tariff which can be adopted as law after a sufficient interval to permit business to arrange itself for it as it cannot arrange itself for a law made by a combination of complaisant but inexpert politicians and shrewd manufacturers. For in anticipation of such a law business waits in suspense and distress, either not daring to move at all, or else forced into a too rapid movement, involving serious and ruinous sacrifices. But whatever is to be done, above all things the Republican leaders should avoid any course that can augment the great army of the dissatisfied that, nearly 6,500,000 strong, followed Bryan at the last election.—[Harper's Weekly.

GENERAL HARRISON'S LITERARY WORK.

The success of ex-President Harrison's articles in the Ladies' Home Journal has been so pronounced that three additional ones will be given. These are likely to prove the most interesting of all that General Harrison has written, in the sense that they will be more personal. The first will show what "A Day With the President at His Desk" means, giving glimpses of the President in his private office. His second article will deal with "The Social Life of the President," which will cover the President's obligatory social duties and his part in great state functions. The last article will go into the President's domestic life and portray "The Domestic Side of the White House." All will be specially illustrated. This will be the first time that an ex-President of the United States has ever written of his office and his home. The articles will all appear in early issues of the Ladies' Home Journal.

SUSAN! MORE THAN TEN YEARS AGO

Uncle Ben brought to our house a small box of red CEDAR sawdust and small ships; Annie, says he, jest sew them up in three or four small cotton bags; hang one in the closet, with your clothes, put one in your clothes chest, and the others you can put in the box with your furs when you put them away in the spring. I followed Uncle Ben's advice, and I was always glad I did. You know how nice and fresh my clothes always look, and Betsy Williams over there has asked me more'n a dozen times how it was my things never showed a moth mark. She says she uses a dozen different things, but it ain't no use, she can't keep them away. Now, Susan, there's a place down on Mill street (No. 69) where they are selling RED CEDAR sawdust and small chips mixed, at 15c. a bag, and I want you to run right down there at once and get a couple of bags before it is all gone, for I bet they haven't got much. It's a pretty scarce article nowadays.

Installation of Rev. T. C. McClelland

As Pastor of the United Congregational Church.

The council called by the United Congregational Church to consider the church's invitation to Rev. T. Calvin McClelland, Ph. D., to become its pastor, met in the chapel on Pelham street at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The council was composed of representatives of the Union, Beneficent and Central Congregational churches of Providence; the Pawtucket, Kingston and Central Falls churches, and the Union church of this city, with Rev. R. W. Wallace, a former pastor of the United church. The council organized with the election of Rev. J. H. Lyon of Central Falls as moderator and Rev. A. L. Clarke of Kingston as scribe.

The records of the church and society meetings, at which the call to Dr. McClelland was extended and endorsed, were read by the respective clerks, and the pastor-elect was called upon for an expression of his ecclesiastical standing. An opportunity was offered for members of the council to ask questions of the candidate.

Letters of regret were read from Rev. James C. Murray, D. D., of Princeton, N. J., Rev. John Hutchison, Arlington, N. J., and Rev. John Phelps Taylor and Rev. F. F. Emerson, former pastors of the church. After a brief session the council retired to consider the case, and shortly reported the approval of the call and the statement of the pastor-elect. The program already arranged for the installation services was adopted, and the council took a recess until evening.

The installation services were held at 7:30 o'clock in the main audience room of the church, which was well filled. Palms and other potted plants, artistically arranged in front of the pulpit, were the only decorations.

The services were opened with an organ prelude, the "Pilgrims' Chorus," Wagner, by the organist of the church, Mr. John Rogers, at the conclusion of which the audience rose and sang the Doxology. Rev. Alexander McGregor of the Pawtucket Congregational Church presided in the absence of the moderator, Rev. J. H. Lyon, who was obliged to return to Central Falls. The scribe, Rev. A. L. Clarke, read the proceedings of the council. These were followed by the invocation by Rev. R. W. Wallace, who also read the Scripture lesson, from the third chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, beginning "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto Spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ." The congregation joined in singing the hymn, "Come, Thou Almighty King;" Rev. Dr. McGregor offered the installation prayer, and Miss Hattie J. Hayes sang "The Holy City," by Adams, with remarkable feeling and expression.

After another hymn by the congregation, "O Word of God Incarnate," Rev. Henry van Dyke, D. D., of New York preached the sermon, taking as his text the eleventh verse of the chapter which had been read as the Scripture lesson: "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." All schools of architecture agree on one point. However they differ in theories of construction or schemes of ornamentation, they are at one in the doctrine that the first and most important part of every building, home or palace, temple or fortress, is the foundation. Now the Apostle Paul translates this truth into the terms of religion. He declares that the essential thing is to have a sure foundation for faith, and character, and life. He declares that such a foundation has been laid in Jesus Christ. And he adds that there is nothing else in the universe which can take the place of that foundation as a basis of all that is permanent and precious in existence. The apostle has been dead eighteen hundred years, but that splendid claim still stands. The number of those who have proved it by personal experience has increased year by year and century by century. Men have tried to lay other foundations, but they have been removed and their works have vanished.

In what sense is Jesus Christ the fundamental reality of human life? First, Christ is the foundation of a reasonable faith. He underlies all true theology. Without him we cannot "assert eternal Providence and justify the ways of God to man." The moral government of the universe becomes all dark and confused, "a mighty maze and all without a plan," unless we believe in a divine redeemer. The problem of the existence of evil under the rule of an absolutely good God is insoluble, and I say it reverently, the moral character of the supreme being is a mockery to our conscience, unless we can discover a personal, saving, redeeming revelation of divine love in the same world into which the Omnipotent has permitted sin to enter.

Men who have made other systems of doctrine have failed because they have made God in Christ supplemental and not fundamental. They have planned out the scope of foreknowledge and traced the cause of predestination; they have explained the mysteries of the sacraments, and made an orderly arrangement of the means of grace. And then in this vast and complex system they have found a place for Christ, and they have unconsciously fitted Christ to that place.

But the true way is first to accept Christ, and then fit our theology to the truth as it is in Him. He is the foundation already laid, and to Him the outline and structure of the building must be conformed. His foundation is sure and steadfast.

In the second place the Christian faith built upon Christ has a self-rectifying and self-purifying power. The Christian faith has overcome protests which human nature has always raised. God is a God not to be hated, but to be loved. Jesus Christ is the foundation of a truly powerful gospel. In everything Paul wrote was the thought that God in Christ was the foundation of his every argument, and this was the secret of his preaching. Whatever subject the preacher touches must be seen and preached in the light of the uplifted Christ, with the thought that the son of God became incarnate and died that sinners might be saved. Jesus Christ is a real person, and in that person God has come into the world to be Emmanuel, God with us. No preacher can convince every man, but the only preacher who can convince any man is he who recognizes Christ as the one foundation.

In the third place Jesus Christ is the only foundation of moral life. Christ is the force behind every moral movement. Take Christ out of your hearts, and no reform can be possible. There is no permanency of character without an immutable ideal, and there is no such ideal but Christ. He is the one ideal that is pure and satisfying. Men and women who have built on Christ as their foundation have been the best men and woman we have ever known. Jesus Christ is the only foundation of the Christian church. The visible church is only the framework of the invisible church and upon Christ alone can this church be built.

Dropping his notes, Dr. van Dyke addressed the church in an earnest manner, saying that fifteen years ago he had left its pulpit, and since that time he had found no new message to bring back, but an infinite depth of new meaning in the old message, Jesus Christ is the only foundation of all things good; in Him alone is the sure foundation.

The choir sang the anthem, "Lovely Appear," by Gounod, and the charge to the church was given by Rev. Wallace Nutting, D. D., of Providence. It was an earnest appeal to the church from the pastor's standpoint, to union of effort and purpose between the people and their pastor for the advancement of Christ's Kingdom. The charge to the pastor and the right hand of fellowship were given by Rev. James G. Vose, D. D., of the Beneficent Congregational Church, of Providence.

The congregation sang the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," the closing prayer was offered by Rev. Mahlon Van Horne of the Union church of this city, and the benediction was given by the pastor, Rev. Dr. McClelland.

As the congregation was leaving the church the organist rendered the gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

The folly of prejudice is frequently shown by people who prefer to suffer for years rather than try an advertised remedy. The millions who have no such notions, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood diseases, and are cured. So much for common sense.

AT THE READING ROOM.

Large Assemblage Entertained at "The Olub."

The dance and reception at the Newport Reading Room last night was a brilliant and successful affair, despite the fact that the german and decorations were dispensed with, the money for such luxuries being spent in a more practical manner. The event was the first of the kind given at "the club" for many years.

The guests, who arrived early, were cordially welcomed by the committee, Mr. John Whipple chairman, Mr. John Bolt, Mr. Hugh K. Norman, Mr. Samuel Powel, Jr., and Mr. William R. Hunter. The patronesses, who also received, were Mrs. John Whipple, Mrs. Hugh K. Norman and Mrs. Frederick P. Sands.

It might well be called almost a ball, the committee having prior to the occasion received about eighty acceptances. The army and naval stations were represented by Commodore Wallace and officers, the War College by Commander C. F. Goodrich and officers, the Torpedo Station by Commander G. A. Converse, instructors and officers, the Constellation by Commander John McGowan and his executive officer, Lieutenant Commander L. C. Logan, and Fort Adams by Colonel A. C. M. Pennington and a representative company of officers, including Adjutant Greble. The army and navy officers were accompanied by ladies.

During the evening the ladies were given ample opportunity to amuse themselves at pool, billiards and cards, for which pretty prizes were provided. The guests felt completely at home in the cosy quarters, and wondered why such attractions should invariably be retained for the exclusive use of its stockholders, members and visitors. The dancing was in the reading room and postoffice, and the music was by the Naval Station band. Supper was provided by Muenchinger & Sons on small tables at midnight. The music began promptly at 9 o'clock.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ives, Dr. and Mrs. H. G. MacKaye, Rear Admiral S. B. Luce, U. S. N., and Mrs. Luce, Mrs. Boutelle Noyes, Mrs. Walters, Mrs. E. F. Rook, Miss Rook, J. Nelison Howard, Dr. Knapp, Mrs. L. C. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Derby, Mrs. and the Misses Converse, Mrs. H. G. THE MUSICAL CLUB.

The musical club, whose organization the News announced some time since, does not confine itself too closely to the study of music, its promoters believing that the social as well as the musical element should be considered, and each week's study is followed by a half-hour's recreation. Last evening, during this half-hour, Miss Bertha Stanhope rendered a number of songs and Dr. Bradley gave readings. To meet the wishes of some who are not singers, yet enjoy good music, an associate membership has been arranged, and hereafter the society will have some listeners and not all singers. The organization is of so informal a nature that so far no name has been provided, but the members attend the meetings and seem to enjoy them better than has hitherto been the case with more formally organized musical associations.

THE GIRL PREACHER.

Cleretta Nora Avery, the child preacher, has been speaking to large congregations at the colored churches for the past two evenings, and will preach for the last time in Newport tonight, at the Union Congregational Church. The child is only eleven years old, but preaches with marvelous ease and with great power, quoting the Scriptures with much fluency. She is accompanied by Rev. J. L. Dart, president of the Charleston Industrial Institute, for which she is working, her main object being to secure funds for a girls' building. The reputation which had preceded her is well deserved. While speaking she is deliberate and self-possessed, and talks as a more mature Christian worker. It is an evident pleasure to the girl to announce that she was converted when only eighteen months old, and in substantiation of this she points to the early conversion of Samuel and John the Baptist, and says "it must be admitted that God is able 'to choose the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty,' and 'out of the mouths of babies and sucklings' to ordain strength and perfect praise." When she preaches she loses her childishness, and appears like one inspired. She has been preaching since 1893, having given her first sermon at Raleigh, N. C., August 17 of that year. Since that time, she has been in many of the leading cities of the United States, creating the profoundest respect for her abilities and earnestness.
